WHY COMPILATION OF "WHO'S WHO" IS CONTINUOUS

Compilation of WHO'S WHO is now continuous. Thorough testing of this method of compilation, extending over six years and three printings, preceded adoption of it as a permanent practice.

Obvious improvements in reference serviceability, exceedingly important because they provide increased timeliness, become practicable when those coming under the WHO'S WHO standards are continuously selected. Other editorial advantages follow, since the levelling off of the compilers' task eliminates pressure "peaks" that may cause some who should be listed to be overlooked until a later volume is in compilation.

To make quickly available for reference use the sketches of new biographees that are continuously being put into manuscript form under this procedure, will be initially published, currently, in the MONTHLY SUPPLEMENT. As the SUPPLEMENT is an essential part of the MARQUIS LIBRARY OF CONTINUOUS AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY — which now supplies continuous coverage, reaching back to Civil War days, of Americans falling under the WHO'S WHO listing standards — this useful monthly publication of sketches of the new WHO'S WHO biographees, which would otherwise be prohibitively costly, is feasible.

Radical changes in the manufacture of an edition now make possible, moreover, utilizing in WHO'S WHO itself far more effectively than has been practicable previously, this advantageous timeliness resulting from continuous compilation. Even after eighteen months have been given over to compiling an Edition of WHO'S WHO, setting type, and assembling the pages for plating, a considerable manufacturing operation — the equivalent of 2,500,000 novels of typical bulk — remains to be carried out — under rigid production deadlines, over several months of three-shift, or round-the-clock, plant days. The scheduling for this entire period must assure the production of a certain portion of the volume each working day, starting with the "A's", ending with the "Z's" — and alphabetic sequence is absolutely essential to a dictionary-style compilation, even at the cost of timeliness.

Coupled to continuous compilation, these mechanical rearrangements — also utilized for this Edition — make timeliness possible despite this necessity of gearing production to alphabetic sequence. They involve producing a part of each WHO'S WHO after the "A to-Z" pages have been completely printed. This separate portion, which is not assembled with the remainder of the Edition until binding is about to begin, enables the Editors to include listings for nearly a quarter-year longer than they could heretofore.

The problem of numbering pages when part of an Edition is manufactured separately, and the contents page must be printed earlier, is met by using a "jump number." In this Edition the first page of the separately-printed section was arbitrarily assigned "2901" even before any pages had been made up for plating, and the preceding page was then noted for use to "jump" to "2900" from whatever its number actually came out as when the last "Z" listing, in the portion of the book in which it would be the "last" page, had been printed.

This separately-and-last-printed portion of WHO'S WHO is carried on the contents page as "Latest Listings and Sketch Additions," and a standardized notice that it is so entered appears on all left-hand pages in the rest of the book. As indicated by the heading under which it appears, this portion of WHO'S WHO is used not only for sketches that otherwise would have to be held over to the next Edition, but as well for additions and changes affecting sketches on pages already printed under the necessary timing of production. Pages 2901 to 3198 are this "Latest Listings and Sketch Additions" portion of this Edition.

It is apparent from the preceding explanation of the controlling mechanical requirements, that under uninterrupted compilation notifications of selection for listing in WHO'S WHO, accompanied by the usual invitations to designate data for publication, are released continuously by the Editors, and consequently, during the period of several months during which the printing and the binding of an Edition is being completed by the production staff, while the Editors are of course working on the compilation of the succeeding Edition, so that typesetting for it may begin under a time table that will assure its plated pages being ready for the presses in time for it, in its turn, to be printed and bound on schedule. Since the sketches of those newly selected for inclusion in WHO'S WHO appear in both the SUPPLEMENT and the first printing of WHO'S WHO in which publication is mechanically possible, some will be published in the SUPPLEMENT while the printing and the binding of the Edition of WHO'S WHO preceding the Edition which can first include them is still in process. After initial publication in the SUPPLEMENT, all WHO'S WHO sketches are invariably resubmitted for scrutiny, so that of-the-moment changes may be brought to attention before a new printing of WHO'S WHO goes to press.

Continuous compilation applies not only to the selection and preparation of new listings, but as well to the routine down-to-date revision, for the next printing, of the type used in the last-published WHO'S WHO. Here, however, mechanical factors, and not editorial advantages, are decisive — for in fact, present-day typographical costs, resulting from both arbitrary restrictions on productivity and drastic increases in wage rates, inexorably require uninterrupted revision of WHO'S WHO.

To make one request for revisionary changes — close to the press deadline in order to protect reference serviceability — would necessitate round-the-clock, day-in-day-out, work by a large number of craftsmen, to have the revised sketches at the press in time for handling the printing and the binding. But at present rates for overtime and work on other than days within the fixed work-week, uninterrupted round-the-clock work on WHO'S WHO is entirely out of reach, even if sufficient skilled craftsmen could nowadays be brought together for the relatively limited "work-peak" period involved. Therefore these mechanical actualities now make continuous revision unavoidable.

With this necessity goes an inescapable requirement to make several requests, instead of the far preferable single request, for sketch changes — continuous editorial and mechanical "processing", with a series of "takes" of new data going to the composing room, being the only alternative to the "peaking" which the drastic changes in all production factors have decisively ruled out. Since this requirement of continuous revision heavily increases their own work-load, the Editors' appreciation that biographees would also greatly prefer a single request for of-the-moment changes to several requests, is both understanding and full. They also know that the practical impossibility of acknowledging each helpful response to their requests for changes and explaining that these revisions once sent need not be again forwarded to them — for they maintain an individual file for each biographee and, as the controlling requirements dictate, draw on the changes that accumulate in it — is not always effectively overcome by their efforts clearly to state that explanation in their routine notices and on the accompanying revision sheets.

Accordingly, the Editors' hope is earnest indeed that here set down, these actualities which today control providing the service WHO'S WHO exists to supply — a service proved worthwhile over more than half a century — will of themselves furnish good and sufficient reason to bear with the needful adjustments in compilative routines.

CORPORATE EDUCATIONAL GIVING:

Up 1166 2/3% Since 1936—But 2632% Still to Go

For 18 years the Editors of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA have been awarding biennially on the issuance of a new volume of WHO'S WHO, Citations for exceptional educational philanthropy (those for 1956 are announced on page 3202). These Citations have recognized gifts to independent American institutions of higher learning, by individuals and estates, considered by the Editors to be outstanding in relation to the total assets of the donee institution, or exceptionally noteworthy examples of memorial giving. Over the years they have become important factors in stimulating philanthropy of the type they honor.

In recognition of the increase in corporate giving to educational institutions during recent years, the Editors are, in conjunction with the publication of Volume 29 of WHO'S WHO, initiating new biennial Citations for corporate educational philanthropy, the first awards of which are announced on page 3205.

> "High income and death taxes have largely ended the day of great individual philanthropists. Today business must share more of the responsibility for meeting the nation's educational and social welfare needs."
> Chairman of the Board
> Standard Oil Company (Indiana)

The purpose of the new Citations is, by recognizing outstanding examples of corporate giving to independent American universities, colleges and schools during the biennium preceding each awarding of them, to stimulate interest among American businesses in supporting these institutions. The Editors believe such corporate giving, if soundly made, to be of basic importance to the country, and therefore in the interest of American business. They have in mind the findings of the Conference on Corporate Contributions to Higher Education, which reflected not only general agreement among representatives of business and education alike on the need for, and the importance of, ever increasing corporate aid to education, with emphasis on assistance for independent institutions of higher learning, but as well these three specific points: company grants of aid to education should receive adequate publicity; once started on helping to support higher education, business should plan to "stay with it"; and no one overall plan for company allocations of grants will serve all cases.

It is the Editors considered belief that the new WHO'S WHO Citations for Corporate Educational Philanthropy will not only stimulate corporate giving to education as a whole, but directly point up all three specific factors emphasized by the Conference. The publicity value of the Citations is great, offering educators as a whole, and WHO'S WHO in particular, an opportunity to render practical recognition of a type of giving that is of great service to our country; furthermore, the attention they will call to outstanding examples of corporate educational philanthropy should provide another reason and another stimulus for "staying with it"; while the citing of specific methods of giving — with special emphasis on the more unusual and imaginative plans — should provide useful guideposts to corporate givers seeking sound direction for their philanthropic aims.

Why corporate aid to education? And why cite such aid especially?

One out of every three freshmen who matriculates at an independent college this year may require financial help from that institution. Yet the institution itself is in all likelihood desperately in need of financial assistance for not only is today's inflationary economy extremely hard on the incomes of American colleges and universities, which are in large part from endowments and fixed funds, but also our large private estates or incomes, the classic sources of new funds, are painfully drained by the tax collector.

Yet enrollments are sky-rocketing — 30 per cent of our 18-year olds now enroll for college; in 1930 but 12 per cent matriculated. These steadily increasing enrollments create both obvious problems as to physical plant and staff, but as well intensify the financial problem, for tuition fees cover only 50 to 70 per cent of operating costs — costs which have risen 50 per cent since 1948 — whereas the fees paid by students have increased less than 25 per cent.

Benjamin Fairless, chairman of the executive advisory committee of the United States Steel Corporation, has a sound answer to this problem — and to both of the questions raised above. It is (quoted by John W. Hill and Albert L. Ayars in the Saturday Review of Literature): "Their [our colleges and universities] only remaining recourse is to business institutions. In short, it appears their survival will depend in large measure upon whether American corporate enterprise is ready, willing and able to come to the financial rescue of our American system of private education."

The figures and examples mentioned below, and the actual instances of corporate educational philanthropy cited by the Editors (page 3205), demonstrate that American business is responding to this desperate need of higher education of which Mr. Fairless warns.

Justifications for using corporate funds to this end are already generally recognized. Two are emphasized in the Saturday Review of Literature article: "The growing conviction of enlightened management that a corporation should be a good citizen of its community;" and the affirmation by the courts that corporations can make gifts to education and receive tax reductions from them (see "In Contributing to Liberal Arts Institutions, Corporations are Furthering Their Own Self-Interest," Volume 28, WHO'S WHO).

Dr. Wilson Compton, president of the Council for Financial Aid to Education, points out a third justification for corporate giving to independent colleges and universities: "[such giving] means fortifying freedom of education and with it the freedom of enterprise and our other freedoms which we count as the promise of the American way of life."

> "Their [our colleges and universities] only remaining recourse is to business institutions. In short, it appears their survival will depend in large measure upon whether American corporate enterprise is ready, willing and able to come to the financial rescue of our American system of private education."

There are, naturally, more justifications than these three for drawing on assets belonging to the stockholders of a corporation to assist, to a reasonable degree within the percentage allowed by law to receive exemption from taxation, private educational institutions of higher education. Four are: (1) the conviction that support of private education can help control the tax burden which would result if state institutions were forced to take over more and more of the job now performed by independent colleges and universities; (2) the well established fact that the educated demand a higher standard of living, which in turn makes for more and better business; (3) today the great majority of businessmen consider corporate giving "good public relations"; and (4) the mushrooming need of modern industry and commerce for both the well-rounded executives and the properly trained technicians who can only be made available by higher education.

Business has, in fact, been turning to higher education for some time to supply its needs for the technically trained — chemists, engineers, physicists — and for its part giving not inconsiderable aid to private educational institutions specializing in the training of technicians. This aid, however, has often been restricted to specific purposes in one way or another and thus is not available to the donee's most pressing needs.

It is, however, only in recent years that businessmen have had driven home to them by experience that higher education can also supply the breed of men frequently most vital to a growing concern — executives who are leaders — and that the independent liberal arts college or university is the top ranking developer of this particular breed. It is from this breed, taught at these independent liberal arts institutions to think well in many fields, rather than to practice superlatively in one, and more adept at human than at technical problems, that come the well-rounded executives and the top-notch administrators American business must have, these practical men of business find.

That this realization has been spreading among American corporations and their executives for several years is clearly demonstrated by a Saturday Review of Literature report, "Industry and the Liberal Arts," made late in 1953. In it William H. Whyte, Jr. pinpointed the dangers of over-specialization and leaders of industry made crystal clear their new appreciation of the need for, and value of, the college graduate with a first rate liberal arts background.

Tangible results of this appreciation among business leaders of training in the liberal arts have become increasingly apparent in the number of corporate gifts to higher education . . . often unrestricted as to application . . . made to essentially liberal arts institutions, or to specific departments dealing with the humanities. The use of unrestricted gifts is generally left to the donees' decisions. Many of the principal gifts made in recent years by the country's largest and greatest corporations have been unrestricted. Since they can be funnelled entirely to support liberal arts departments, they are, in effect, a tangible expression of the respect of American businessmen for academic freedom, and of their agreement with this statement by Chancellor Lawrence A. Kimpton of the University of Chicago: "If American business chooses to protect itself by preserving the private college and university, it can do so only through preserving their freedom"; and this by Gilbert W. Chapman, president of the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company: "Never before in history has mankind developed the power to destroy itself. The need for stamina and thought to control this threat can only be met by the enlightened moral and spiritual education of our youth. The specialist must also be a humanist."

The first Bienniel Citations for corporate Educational Philanthropy are described in detail on page 3205. They, and the several Honorable Mentions, are an effort to single out for special notice the largest and most significant corporate gifts made during the biennium of July 1, 1953, to June 30, 1955, but — unlike the two Who's Who Citations for non-corporate benefactions — without necessarily referring either to the proportional relationship the gift bears to the donee's total assets, or stipulating that one gift be a memorial. Effort is made to bring them to the attention of newspapers, wire services, periodicals, and radio-TV networks, to the end of gaining the greatest possible public recognition of the national importance of corporate educational philanthropy.

In making their selections, the Editors have been guided by the following criteria, developed from the recommendations for corporate giving made at the above-noted Conference on Corporate Contributions to Higher Education: Where scholarships are involved, an unrestricted cost-of-education supplement to the enrolling institution should also be included; a corporate donor should not put a financial burden on a college or university because of the nature of the grant(s) it is making; fellowship funds for professional or graduate study should also be accompanied by a cost-of-education supplement; and the donor corporation, regardless of the nature of its grant, should scrupulously avoid infringing upon academic freedom, or upsetting administrative procedures.

The Citations for Corporate Educational Philanthropy will be recorded in each edition of Who's Who in Commerce and Industry beginning with the Tenth. Also, the Editors of that reference work will themselves award special citations intended to bring to notice additional examples of sound methodology for corporate giving and instances of exceptional giving by sole proprietorships and unincorporated businesses.

Corporate educational philanthropy increased from an estimated $6,000,000 in 1936 to over $70,000,000 in 1953. It is our hope that this encouraging increase, so significant for the nation, and therefore for American commerce and industry . . . which are dependent on the national welfare to provide for all Americans the standard of living to which they are accustomed . . . will to some degree be carried upward by the new Who's Who Citations for Exceptional Corporate Educational Philanthropy toward representing much more than the present small fraction (3.6%) of what American corporations can give free of taxes.

The Editors

The Ninth Biennial Citations for Exceptional Educational Philanthropy

Each biennium since the WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA Citations for Exceptional Educational Philanthropy were established eighteen years ago has seen the award of Citations. What began as an experiment in stimulating giving to educational institutions has become an established function of the Board of Editors and has now extended to the award of the Citations for Corporate Educational Philanthropy (page 3205) as well as the following for gifts by individuals or estates. Likewise the announcement of the awards has become an anticipated event, as witness the not inconsiderable publicity attending it.

Noteworthy also during the past eighteen years, and indicative of the worthwhile influence of the citations, are not only the increase each biennium in the number of benefactions coming to the Editors' attention, but as well the greater number of small donations and novel or unique benefactions.

The conditions surrounding the 1956-57 Citations for gifts by individuals or estates remain the same as when the Citations were first announced in 1938. In respect to one Citation, they are that the gift consist of money or securities, and that it represent a greater proportion of the plant value and endowment of the institution benefited than any other corresponding gift called to the attention of the Board of Editors.

ON BEHALF OF THE EDITORS OF WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA.
DATED FEBRUARY 1, 1956.

GATEWAY TO HOPE AND OPPORTUNITY ACCESS TO VISTAS GONE AND STILL TO BE

The Ninth Biennial Citation for the memorial gift to an American institution of learning selected by the Board of Editors as outstanding.

The conditions for the second Citation are that it be a memorial, and that it represent the most outstanding gift of its type coming to the Editors' attention.

The Board of Editors has announced, as detailed below, the Ninth Biennial Citations for the period from July 1, 1953, through June 30, 1955.

WINIFRED D. WALLACE

Kalamazoo College for many years benefited from the interest of the late Winifred D. Wallace, born Winifred Dewing, a member of one of the Michigan city's early families. This continued interest in the college, evidenced by membership on the Women's Council and contributions to the Library and to the English Department, was climaxed by Mrs. Wallace, who died January 1, 1954, naming Kalamazoo College residuary beneficiary of her estate.

Upon final settlement of the estate, in accordance with Mrs. Wallace's wishes, the legacy, amounting to approximately $1,300,000, will be placed in the college's endowment fund. The addition of this large sum will more than double the present endowment of Kalamazoo College.

In recognition of her continued interest in the college named for her native city, an interest fittingly climaxed by this very important gift, amounting as it does to over 60 per cent of the combined endowment capital, plant and equipment of Kalamazoo College, the Editors award posthumously to Winifred D. Wallace the Ninth Biennial Citation for Exceptional Educational Philanthropy. Mrs. Wallace's gift was, incidentally, one of the largest proportionally to come to the Editors' attention in several years.

The Board of Editors has awarded Honorable Mention to the following donors of gifts which, among the many fine examples of generosity to education, are especially outstanding on the score of their high ratio to total assets of the donee institution, significance in respect to the particular purposes designated — or both.

W. M. EDWARDS

Fifty years of "long, hard work," to quote a local newspaper, by a Trans-Pecos rancher, W. M. Edwards of Fort Stockton, Texas, has resulted in the largest gift in the history of Abilene Christian College, Abilene, Texas. The gift also bears the second highest ratio — 57 per cent — to the combined endowment capital, plant and equipment of the donee institution of any benefactions brought to the Editors' attention during the 1953-55 biennium.

Starting in 1905 with eight sections, Mr. Edwards increased his ranch to 65 ½ sections in the ensuing fifty years. This ranch, valued at $1,100,000, was deeded to Abilene Christian in May 1955 by Mr. Edwards, who retains a life estate in the property. Thus on his death the college will receive 41,839.25 acres, including the mineral rights on 24,000 acres. The latter could, of course, greatly increase the value of the gift in the future.

For his generous gift, the means for which was accumulated by his own hard work for over a half century, W. M. Edwards is awarded Honorable Mention by the Editors.

Honorable Mention is awarded posthumously to the late Floyd L. Knight of Lynchburg, Virginia, for his bequest to Lynchburg College of $603,000. Mr. Knight, who died August 30, 1951, made the college residual legatee of his estate, which was finally settled during the past year.

This gift, amounting to over 53 per cent of the combined endowment capital, plant and equipment of Lynchburg College, was left unrestricted. Over half — $100,000 — was placed in the permanent funds of the college, while another portion is being used to erect a library building. The bequest, incidentally, stimulated interest among citizens of the country in the college, and was widely publicized throughout the state.

MR. AND MRS. SEDGWICK KISTLER

For an outstanding example of continuing educational philanthropy, Mr. and Mrs. Sedgwick Kistler are awarded posthumous Honorable Mention for their several gifts to Rosemont College, Rosemont, Pennsylvania, culminating in a bequest of $750,000 to build a library wing.

During their lives Mr. and Mrs. Kistler gave Rosemont the library itself. Mr. Kistler passed away first and suggested in his will that the above gift be unrestricted. However, in appreciation of their continuing assistance, Rosemont decided it was only fitting to use this final gift to enlarge the library the Kistlers had made possible during their lifetime.

ROSE WARNEKE SCOVILL

Two important gifts, of a rather unique nature, given by Rose Warneke Scovill of Decatur, Illinois, and her husband, to James Millikin University, Decatur, during the past biennium, amount to a total benefaction of $1,010,000, approximately 18 per cent of the combined endowment capital, plant and equipment of the donee institution.

Mrs. Scovill presented 1,700 acres of Illinois farm land, valued conservatively at $300 per acre, then she and her husband also gave Millikin University a city store valued at approximately $500,000, making the total gift over a million dollars, certainly an example of educational philanthropy worthy of Honorable Mention in connection with the Ninth Biennial Citations.

WALTER H. ANNENBERG

Honorable Mention is also awarded Walter H. Annenberg (page 73), owner and publisher of the Philadelphia Inquirer, for his gift of $100,000 to Peddie School, Hightstown, N. J., towards construction of a newly proposed library.

This gift is another example of continuing educational philanthropy, for Mr. Annenberg, an alumnus of Peddie School and a member of its Board of Corporators, had previously made substantial gifts to the school, including the Annenberg athletic field and track.

Special Citations

HUBERT E. HOWARD

In accordance with their policy of awarding Special Citations recognizing service to an American educational institution over a period of years, the Editors have presented such a Citation to Hubert E. Howard (page 1243) of Chicago. This Special Citation recognizes Mr. Howard's continued attention to the needs of Parsons College, Fairfield, Iowa, culminating in a gift of $100,000, which was matched by the trustees of the college, and thus enabled Parsons to build its first new building in over 35 years.

Perhaps the best indication of the importance of Mr. Howard's continued assistance to this small independent college is contained in the words of its president, who states: "Certainly through Mr. Howard's gifts the college is open and working today"; and, in reference to Mr. Howard's latest gift which made possible the new building, named the Hubert E. Howard Dormitory in honor of the donor: "It was actually the life blood of the future for Parsons."

This new dormitory, completed in 1954, has enabled Parsons College to enter a period of growth and development, the total enrollment having increased over one-third during the past two years. Prior to this benefaction Mr. Howard not only made several gifts over a period of years, but through his leadership a fund was established in the city of Fairfield which now provides more than $25,000 annually for the college operating budget.

Outstanding Memorial Gifts

JAMES B. NELSON

The Ninth Biennial Citation for an Outstanding Memorial Gift is awarded James B. Nelson of Indianapolis for not one, but two, gifts, and to two different institutions of higher education, the University of Michigan and Indiana University. In awarding this Citation the Editors are departing from custom not only on the score that two gifts and two donee institutions are involved, but as well in that neither of the latter is, strictly speaking, an independent institution, both being state universities. The ultimate aim of the Citations, however, being the stimulation of educational philanthropy in general, and Mr. Nelson's gifts representing such outstanding assistance to the teaching of the liberal arts in particular, the Editors determined this departure to be in order.

Mr. Nelson, joined by his wife and daughter, has donated a total of $1,200,000 to the University of Michigan to establish the James B. and Grace J. Nelson Endowments for the Teaching of Philosophy. This is the largest gift ever received for the support and advancement of the faculty of this large university; furthermore, the funds must remain unimpaired for this sole purpose and thus the original intent of aiding the teaching of philosophy is made perpetual and provides assistance in meeting one of the major problems of higher education today: attracting and retaining outstanding teachers.

Mr. Nelson's gifts to Indiana University total over $1,000,000 and similarly are designed to support instruction in the liberal arts: they set up the James B. and Grace J. Nelson Institute for the Teaching of Philosophy. To quote the University's president, referring to the essentially practical or vocational nature of many gifts received from businessmen such as Mr. Nelson: "Rare indeed is [a gift] to provide an income in support of eminent teachers . . . of philosophy and the humanities . . . Mr. Nelson's gift is unique both as to purpose and size."

Honorable Mention is hereby accorded to the donors of the following memorial gifts to educational institutions:

WILLIAM H. COWLES, JR., AND FAMILY

In memory of his father, William H. Cowles, Spokane philanthropist, William H. Cowles, Jr. (page 565), owner and publisher of the "Spokesman-Review" and "Spokane Chronicle," has presented $400,000 to Whitworth College of Spokane. These funds, which incidentally amount to almost 15% of the combined endowment capital, plant and equipment of the donee institution, are to be used to build a memorial auditorium in honor of Mr. Cowles, Sr.

For this munificent gift, typifying educational philanthropy of a memorial nature, the Editors award Honorable Mention in connection with the Ninth Biennial Citations for Outstanding Memorial Gifts.

RUSSELL SEVERENCE SPRINGER

Were the donee institution one of the nation's smaller colleges the gifts received by the University of California from the estate of the late Russell Severence Springer would certainly, on a proportionate basis at least, merit a citation. This not being the case, clearly an Honorable Mention is in order, for the several gifts from the Springer Estate represented one of the largest individual donations coming to the Editors' attention.

Honorable Mention is presented in the memorial category as the greatest proportion of Mr. Springer's benefactions, $2,875,231.41, went to establish the Russell Severence Springer Foundation for maintenance and support of the Berkeley campus of the University of California. The grand total amount bequeathed by Mr. Springer, which included several other funds, came to more than $3,500.000.

MRS. FRANK KNOX

The widow of the former Secretary of the Navy established several years ago at Harvard University "a fund in memory of my husband to be called the Frank Knox Memorial." The fund was to provide exchange fellowships throughout the world and in the belief that "informed and understanding contact" between the peoples of the British Commonwealth and the United States is essential to international peace.

Mrs. Knox's original gift was $1,000,000, which she has now increased to over $1,500,000. For her continuing generosity in furthering the lofty aims of her original memorial benefaction the Editors award Mrs. Knox an Honorable Mention.

CHILDREN OF MRS. MARY IRWIN BELK

Honorable Mention is also awarded by the Editors to the children of Mrs. Mary Irwin Belk, of Charlotte, N. C., for their memorial gift of $125,000 to Queen's College of Charlotte.

This gift, typical of memorial giving by a family in honor of a beloved parent or relative, is to be used by this small college of less than 500 students to meet one-half the cost of construction of a new dormitory, and represents the largest gift received by Queen's during the past biennium.

MINNIE RIESS DETLING

Minnie Riess Detling, who passed away August 13, 1952, is awarded Honorable Mention posthumously for her bequest of $833,441.47 — the major portion of her estate — to the University of Wisconsin, providing that half be used to establish the Minnie Riess Detling and John M. Detling Medical Research Fund. Mrs. Detling's husband died of amytrophic lateral sclerosis, and she recommended that part or all of the fund be used for research work on that disease. The other half of her estate was to be used to provide scholarships to Wisconsin high school students who had made outstanding scholastic records and were in need of financial assistance in order to attend the University, and for fellowships for postgraduate research work in fields such as languages, chemistry, law and social studies.

The First Biennial Citations for Corporate Educational Philanthropy

The following Citations, the first strictly confined to corporate giving to higher education to be presented by the Editors of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA, represent an effort to single out for special note the largest and most significant corporate gifts made during the biennium of July 1, 1953, to June 30, 1955. Several Citations are being presented, for the Editors believe their purpose of furthering corporate educational philanthropy is best served by citing not just the largest gift in gross amount, or largest proportionately to the size of the donee institution, but rather several benefactions, noteworthy not only because of size, but as well those evidencing particular foresight on the donor's part, exemplifying a unique approach to the specific problem at hand, or so typical of corporate giving methodology as to serve as guideposts to other donors.

The Editors have also been guided in making their selections by the criteria described in the article "Corporate Educational Giving — Up to 1166⅔% Since 1936, But 2632% Still to Go" (see page 3200), which article deals in some detail with the Editors' motivations in determining to award these special Citations for corporate educational philanthropy. These criteria were developed from the recommendations for corporate giving made at the Conference on Corporate Contributions to Higher Education.

It has been necessary to depend upon information concerning corporate gifts made during the 1953-55 biennium brought to the Editors' attention by educational institutions as the result of a mail request to them, or unearthed in the process of canning newspapers and periodicals in connection with the compilation of this Edition of WHO'S WHO. No special research has been conducted during the past biennium. It is therefore quite possible that some significant examples of corporate educational philanthropy never received the Editors' consideration.

THE HALLS OF LEARNING CAST A MELLOW GLOW ON THE OUTER WORLDS OF DARKNESS

A CITATION

AS A DONOR IN SUPPORT OF

AMERICAN HIGHER EDUCATION

Jewell Ridge Coal Corporation

IS AWARDED THIS CITATION IN RECOGNITION OF SUBSTANTIAL AND SIGNIFICANT GIVING TO HIGHER EDUCATION IN AMERICA BROUGHT TO THE ATTENTION OF THE EDITORS DURING THE PERIOD FROM JULY 1, 1953, THROUGH JUNE 30, 1955.

ON BEHALF OF THE EDITORS OF WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA.
DATED FEBRUARY 1, 1956.

GATEWAY TO HOPE AND OPPORTUNITY ACCESS TO VISTAS GONE AND STILL TO BE

The First Biennial Citation for Corporate Educational Philanthropy — one of eight presented for the largest and most significant corporate gifts among those reported.

If such be the case, and some corporate givers as a result feel they have been slighted, the Editors beseech their indulgence on the grounds that with any innovation the first effort must be expected to fall short of the perfection it might be hoped to attain in the future. The Editors trust any such instances of corporate giving will be called to their attention so they may receive notice in succeeding editions of WHO'S WHO or in the Bulletin of Educational Philanthropy. For the ultimate aim of the Citations is not only to make appropriate note of outstanding gifts, but as well as to further the cause of corporate educational philanthropy in general by disseminating as widely as possible information about it and its significance to all Americans, and, by citing specific examples of outstanding gifts, to stimulate and encourage further giving to higher education by corporations, large and small, throughout the country.

It should be noted that the Editors, although considering as corporate givers company-sponsored foundations formed for the purpose of administering gifts to education, have not so identified established foundations set up for general philanthropic purposes. If such were the case, other citations would be in order for such foundations as the Field and the Ford — the latter alone responsible in 1955 for the largest gift of record for American education, which resulted in the special Citation for Henry Ford described on pages 6 and 9.

Biennial Citations for Corporate Educational Philanthropy have been awarded to the following organizations:

JEWELL RIDGE COAL CORPORATION

Whenever a small independent college is handsomely assisted by a gift from a business in a neighboring locality, itself not one of the industrial giants, the course of corporate educational philanthropy is advanced immeasureably by the example thus set. For, important as the large gifts of the nation's biggest corporations to our leading institutions of higher education may be, it is, in the long run, the multiplicity of more modest benefactions to a number of smaller independent institutions that will do the most to solve the overall predicament confronted by American higher education.

Just such an example of corporate educational philanthropy is the annual gift of $12,000, made by the Jewell Ridge Coal Corp., Tazewell, Va., and its president, Huston St. Clair (page 2436), to King College of Bristol, Tenn., which gift the donor has bound itself to continue indefinitely. King is a small liberal arts college, with an endowment of under $1,000,000, thus this gift, the total value of which is estimated at over $250,000, is comparable to a benefaction of over $50,000,000 to the nation's wealthiest university.

T. L. JAMES & COMPANY

Of similar nature is the somewhat larger gift made by T. L. James & Co., contractors, of Rushton, La., to a somewhat larger institution of higher education, Centenary College of Louisiana, Shreveport. This gift, amounting to $511,411.78, was used to construct a new building, housing 96 girls, named the T. L. James Memorial Dormitory, thus helping meet one of the most pressing educational problems of today — housing. Mr. T. L. James, in whose memory the dormitory was given by his company, was for many years a member of the Centenary Board of Trustees.

Thus this gift, of major importance to an independent college with an endowment of slightly over $3,000,000, serves not only as a memorial but as well as an outstanding example of continuity in corporate educational philanthropy: during his lifetime Mr. James gave of his time to Centenary College; upon his death his service is continued through the farseeing generosity of his business.

UNION CARBIDE AND CARBON CORPORATION

That significant corporate educational philanthropy is by no means confined to smaller businesses is emphasized by the important $500,000 gift made by the Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation, one of the largest chemical manufacturers in the world. The importance of this gift is not its size — there are several larger — but the comprehension of educational financial problems by the donor corporation it demonstrates.

To quote from the University of the South — one of 35 institutions participating (to the extent of $10,000) in this $500,000 gift program: "We consider [it] to be the most significant of this decade because it is one of the first major-sized gift by a major corporation . . . which took into account the deficit faced by educational institutions [in the difference that exists between actual fees charged and ultimate costs] by awarding a supplementary grant to each institution for each scholarship applicant accepted." In further commendation of the Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation, it should be added that the company went to great lengths to make quite clear that its gift had "no strings attached."

CARL S. SWISHER FOUNDATION, INC.

This foundation, directed by Carl S. Swisher, who represents the third generation of owners and executives of the cigar manufacturers now known as John H. Swisher & Son, Inc., contributed a total of $480,000 during the past biennium to the building program of Jacksonville (Fla.) Junior College. This relatively small independent junior college, founded only in 1934, was moved to a 150-acre suburban site in Jacksonville in 1950. The Swisher Foundation stepped in to contribute substantially to the first building on the new campus, and in 1952 gave the modern Swisher Gymnasium.

The Foundation's generosity was continued in the present biennium with the Swisher Library, completed in the fall of 1954, at a cost of $180,000, and the Swisher Auditorium, costing $300,000, finished late in 1955. Contributions have also been made in the form of scholarships for needy students, but primarily the Foundation's giving has been channeled into capital improvements necessary for the development of a modern plant on the new campus.

E. I. duPONT de NEMOURS & COMPANY

Of the utmost significance are the most recent benefactions by one of the pioneer corporations in aid-to-education, the E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co. In the past the munificent gifts to educational institutions emanating from this great chemical manufacturer have been primarily directed technical training, chiefly in the field of chemistry.

Proving itself as alert to trends in educational philanthropy as it is to the development of new products in the field of chemistry, duPont, in 1955, increased its allotment for educational philanthropy to $800,000, making grants to 50 independent liberal arts colleges and smaller technical schools plus 57 postgraduate fellowships for 38 institutions. This recognition of the nation's liberal arts institutions by one of the first and greatest participants in corporate educational philanthropy is indeed significant. (Since June 30, 1955 a new duPont gift of $900,000 has been announced.)

GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY

The outstanding contribution of General Electric Co. to the cause of corporate educational philanthropy has been its pioneering in an important new method of giving. This is the plan of its Educational and Charitable Fund to match any employee's gifts to his college or university up to $1,000 per year. These gifts are in addition to scholarships, fellowships, and grants-in-aid provided by the Fund.

This plan, called the Corporate Alumnus Program, will result in gifts to education ranging from $300,000 to $500,000 annually. The regular benefactions of the Fund to education are now amounting to over $1,000,000 per year, making GE's average total contribution to higher education now approximately $1,500,000 per year.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (INDIANA)

Under the leadership of its chairman, this large corporation has become one of the leaders in corporate educational philanthropy, its benefactions now averaging over $1,300,000 annually, and covering, as well as scholarships and fellowships and direct aid, a consistant program designed to assist higher education.

During the past year, Standard of Indiana's annual "average" was far surpassed — the 1955 total was over $2,000,000 — due chiefly to the gift of a $950,000 research laboratory by one of its subsidiaries, Stanolind Oil & Gas Co., to the University of Tulsa. In citing this corporation the Editors are noting not only this large gift, but as well the company's continuing generosity in behalf of all educational and youth activities.

GENERAL MOTORS CORPORATION

This giant among educational givers as well as among corporations has increased its program, which is handled through the General Motors Institute, to over $2,500,000 this year. This program consists of grants for research projects as well as contributions for fellowships and scholarships.

The latest addition to the GM program provides 350 annual four-year scholarships plus grants-in-aid of, significantly, unrestricted funds to independent colleges and universities educating the scholarship students. This is only the start of a new program which, when in full operation, will provide scholarships for 1,400 students, and bring GM's annual financial support to higher education to $4,500,000 by 1959.

Certainly, as the largest corporate giver to come to the Editors' attention, General Motors Corporation, as well as the other seven corporate benefactors of higher education mentioned above, are all richly deserving of citations. There were, however, numerous other corporate gifts the Editors believe worthy of note, and from this group the Editors have selected those corporations listed below to receive honorable mention for outstanding instances of corporate educational philanthropy.

HONORABLE MENTION

The Editors have selected the following American businesses for honorable mention in connection with the First Biennial Citations for Corporate Educational Philanthropy:

Columbia Broadcasting System — A program administered by the company foundation, now amounting to $72,000 in unrestricted grants to colleges and universities from which CBS executives were graduated.

Eastman Kodak Co. — Program of national fellowships and special aid for medical education augmented by: (1) $1,000,000 unrestricted to the University of Rochester Development Fund; and (2) new program whereby an employe's alma mater is reimbursed $500 annually for each year spent at the donee institution, amounting to approximately $350,000 for 1955.

Food Fair Stores — A foundation established to which $490,000 has been turned over to support 41 four-year scholarships at universities in states served by the company.

General Foods Corp. — In the past year $270,000 alloted by the company's fund to the aid-to-education program, of which $145,000 went to eleven state and regional associations of liberal arts colleges, and $125,000 to individual colleges and other educational funds.

International Harvester Co. — The company and its foundation have averaged $1,100,000 per year for past three years in contributions for educational and charitable purposes.

Lynchburg Foundry Co. — A gift of $30,000 to Lynchburg (Va.) College, a typical instance of aid on a company's "home grounds."

Maytag Company — A total of $61,000 allocated in 1954, $25,000 in scholarships and $36,000 in unrestricted gifts to educational institutions, by the company's foundation.

Proctor & Gamble Corp. — Program increased to $650,000 annually by addition of 200 four-year undergraduate scholarships and 40 scholarships at women's colleges.

Radio Corporation of America — Program increased to $96,000, of which $26,000 is to finance scholarships and $70,000 graduate fellowships to assist young scientists and engineers to attend institutions of higher education.

Sears, Roebuck and Co. — A pioneer in corporate aid to education, Sears through its foundation has now increased its program to approximately $600,000 annually, providing for four-year scholarships for 100 outstanding students.

Standard Oil (New Jersey) — In accordance with its new policy of financial support to education through direct grants to independent institutions, the Esso Education Foundation was formed to distribute over $1,000,000 in 1954, including $450,000 to the operating funds of 138 colleges and universities, and upwards of $1,500,000 in 1955.

United States Steel Corporation — "Big Steel" has increased the program of its foundation from $700,000 in 1954 to $1,000,000 in 1955 to 400 colleges and universities, including $480,000 for operating grants.

Westinghouse Electrical & Manufacturing Co. — The Westinghouse foundation has set up a five-year $5,000,000 aid program to include direct grants, and over 300 annual scholarships.

Woolrich Woolen Mills — A gift of $38,600 to neighboring Lycoming College of Williamsport, Pa., another instance of "aid near home."

Citations for Exceptional Gifts to Libraries

In accordance with their custom, inaugurated in 1941, the Editors are again awarding two Citations recognizing exceptional gifts to American libraries. One honors the donor of the gift which, among those brought to the attention of the Board, bears the largest ratio to the average annual income of the donee library. The other cites the donor of the gift selected from among those considered by the Board as being a unique and important example of memorial giving to libraries. The benefactions made to libraries which are integrant part of educational institutions are considered in connection with the Citations for exceptional educational philanthropy.

These citations are awarded on the basis of information requested from libraries throughout the country concerning gifts received by them during the period of July 1, 1953, through June 30, 1955. The response received from the Editors' requests for data indicates continuity not only of interest in the Citations, but, what is more important, as well in library philanthropy. It is the Editors' hope that the Citations have, in some degree, been responsible for this increase, and, if so, they consider themselves well rewarded for the effort they have expended in compiling data, selecting Citation winners, and publicizing to the best of their ability the Library Citations in particular, and library philanthropy in general.

FOR A GIFT TO

MOORE MEMORIAL LIBRARY

Ada Small Moore

IS POSTHUMOUSLY AWARDED THIS CITATION AS THE DONOR OF THE MOST SUBSTANTIAL GIFT IN RELATION TO TOTAL ANNUAL INCOME OF AN AMERICAN LIBRARY BROUGHT TO THE ATTENTION OF THE EDITORS DURING THE PERIOD FROM JULY 1, 1953, THROUGH JUNE 30, 1955.

ON BEHALF OF THE EDITORS OF WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA.
DATED FEBRUARY 1, 1956.

GATEWAY TO HOPE AND OPPORTUNITY ACCESS TO VISTAS GONE AND STILL TO BE

The Eighth Biennial Citation for a gift largest, among those reported to the Board, in proportion to the annual income of an American library.

THE HALLS OF LEARNING CAST A MELLOW GLOW ON THE OUTER WORLDS OF DARKNESS

A CITATION

FOR A GIFT TO

WEST UNION (IOWA)

Oscar W. Heiserman

IS POSTHUMOUSLY AWARDED THIS CITATION AS THE DONOR OF THE LIBRARY MEMORIAL GIFT SELECTED BY THE EDITORS AS OUTSTANDING DURING THE PERIOD FROM JULY 1, 1953, THROUGH JUNE 30, 1955.

ON BEHALF OF THE EDITORS OF WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA.
DATED FEBRUARY 1, 1956.

GATEWAY TO HOPE AND OPPORTUNITY ACCESS TO VISTAS GONE AND STILL TO BE

The Eighth Biennial Citation for the library memorial gift selected by the Board of Editors as both unique and outstanding.

ADA SMALL MOORE

Over 50 years ago — in 1903 — the late Ada Small Moore and her husband, William H. Moore, together with James H. Moore and his wife, established the Moore Memorial Library at Greene, N. Y., in honor of Nathaniel and Rachel Moore, parents of the Moore brothers (see WHO WAS WHO I) and natives of the community.

In 1950 Ada Small Moore underwrote the entire expense, approximately $25,000, of completely renovating the library and also agreed to meet the annual operating deficit of the institution during her lifetime. Later she assisted the library in placing its former librarian on a retirement basis and in engaging a fully trained new librarian at current salary rates, also encouraging the purchase of new books.

Then, upon her death, Mrs. Moore bequeathed the library $150,000, over 18 times its average annual income, further to perpetuate this most useful memorial to her husband's parents. Thus this gift actually qualifies in both Citation categories and the Editors feel it is eminently deserving of the award presented posthumously to Mrs. Moore, not only as the largest proportional gift of the past biennium called to their attention, but also as an oustanding example of continuing library philanthropy.

The Board of Editors has selected for Honorable Mention the following donors of gifts bearing high mathematical ratios to the yearly income of the libraries involved:

MIDLAND LIBRARY ASSOCIATION

About the turn of the century a group of Midland (Texas) women, feeling their community of 1200 needed a library, bought two lots in the village square for $125.00, raising the money through ice cream socials and cake and lemonade sales. Meanwhile they stocked and serviced a small collection of books. In 1930 the books were utilized to set up a county library and the lots were rented, part of this income being turned over to the new library, but the majority held in trust. In the spring of 1955 the lots were sold for $85,000. This sum, and the money held in trust, totaling $107,042.04, has now been presented to the Midland County Library to construct a building, and later in 1956 the new Midland City-County Library will be in operation.

Certainly an Honorable Mention is in order for the Midland Library Association in recognition of its foresight, its continued support of the library, and its culminating gift, amounting to over five times the average annual income of the donee library, another outstanding example of continuing library philanthropy.

J. WILLIAM RICHLEY

Amounting to almost seven times the average annual income of the donee library is the gift of real estate, officially assessed at $144,855, presented to the Historical Society of York County, Pennsylvania, by V. William Richley of York. This library is a research collection and its books and manuscripts do not circulate. Mr. Richley's gift is one of the largest proportionately made during the past biennium and well deserves Honorable Mention for an outstanding example of library philanthropy.

DAN A. LEVY

Because of the proportionate basis for awarding the Citations, gifts to big city libraries with relatively large annual incomes often do not qualify for consideration if strict mathematical standards are adhered to solely. Yet the metropolitan library is often equally in need of assistance from the community it serves.

An important example of such philanthropy is the bequest to the Fort Worth Public Library of $70,000 in trust, the income from which is to be used to purchase books, made in the will of Dan A. Levy of that city. For this thoughtful benefaction to the public library serving his city, Dan A. Levy is posthumously awarded an Honorable Mention in connection with the Eighth Biennial Citations for Library Philanthropy.

Outstanding Memorial Gifts

OSCAR W. HEISERMAN

One of the most noteworthy examples of a library memorial gift ever called to the Editors' attention is that of the late Oscar W. Heiserman to the community of West Union, Iowa. Mr. Heiserman did not merely make a gift to the library, he bequesthed in his will the funds to build an entire library in memory of himself and his wife, Marie Heiserman. Prior to his gift the only public library in West Union had been located in a room in the City Hall.

Mr. Heiserman gave $46,867.39, almost the entire amount being used by the city of West Union to construct a library on land purchased by the city from the school board. Ground was broken for the new building on March 12, 1954, and the library was first opened to readers on August 31 of that year. Mr. Heiserman's gift, incidentally, amounted to over 13 times the average annual income of the existing one room library.

For this outstanding library memorial gift Mr. Heiserman is posthumously awarded the Eighth Biennial Citation for memorial gifts to American libraries.

The Editors have found the following benefactions of unusual interest, and record them for Honorable Mention in the memorial category:

SOPHIA S. SCHLATHER

Among the largest gifts to American libraries during the past biennium was that of $100,000 given the Rocky River (Ohio) Public Library by Mrs. Sophia S. Schlather of that city. This sum made possible the construction of a new wing, approximately two-thirds the size of the existing library, and named the Leonard Schlather Memorial Wing in memory of the donor's husband. In addition to the donor's room the new wing will contain a reading room, washroom, librarian's office and kitchenette, and in the basement an auditorium, women's lounge, storage space and kitchen.

Mrs. Schlather also gave rare books of art, archaeology and travel, and art objects collected over the years. For this generous memorial gift, benefiting the entire community, the Editors award Honorable Mention to Mrs. Schlather.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES LARABEE

A unique example of continuity in memorial giving to libraries is the gift of $3,337 to the Nora E. Larabee Memorial Library of Stafford, Kansas, by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Larabee of Balboa Island, California. Mr. Larabee is the nephew of the girl in whose memory the library was built in 1908. Learning that the library had an overflow of books, Mr. Larabee instructed the board to build a balcony at his expense to meet the problem. Now over 4,000 books are housed in steel stacks in a newly furnished section of this library, built almost half a century ago in the memory of the aunt of the present donor.

M. F. BARNO

M. F. Barno of Macon, Georgia, has been responsible for such a series of gifts of books to educational institutions and libraries that it is difficult to single out any one for mention. In fact, Mr. Barno is deserving of Honorable Mention for library philanthropy in general, his numerous book gifts being typical of the importance of non-monetary gifts to libraries.

Of particular note are his gifts in memory of his mother and father, the late Fred and Anna Barno, to the Hartshorne (Okla.) City Library. These gifts have become so numerous that they are described in the local newspaper as follows: "M. F. Barno . . . has sent another consignment of books for the Hartshorne City Library." As the librarian put it, in writing thanks to Mr. Barno: "A struggling library needs all the help it can get, and we all appreciate your assistance."

Educational Announcements

Parents desiring to gain reliable information concerning placement of sons and daughters, and young men and women who desire to avail themselves of exceptional educational facilities, are invited to consult carefully the educational announcements on the following pages.

These announcements well represent the independent private educational equipment of the country. They contain much interesting and instructive information which cannot fail to be exceedingly helpful in examining educational opportunities, from Elementary School to University. Unlike ordinary commercial educational announcements, much information is provided regarding educational philosophies, as well as data of interest to potential donors.

For the sake of convenience, the educational announcements are grouped, as nearly as possible, according to the following classifications:

Co-Educational Colleges and Universities, pages 3214-3269
Colleges for Men, pages 3270-3276
Dental Colleges, page 3334
Colleges for Women, pages 3277-3288
Junior Colleges, pages 3289, 3290
Girls' Preparatory and Junior Colleges, pages 3291-3298
Theatre Schools, page 3334
Co-Educational Preparatory Schools, pages 3305, 3306
Co-Educational Preparatory and Junior Colleges, pages 3304
Girls' Preparatory Schools, pages 3299-3303
Boys' Preparatory Schools, pages 3307-3318
Military and Naval Schools, pages 3219-3330
Business Schools, pages 3331, 3332
Specialized Schools, pages 3330, 3332, 3334
Home Training School, page 3330
Medical Colleges, pages 3332, 3335
Colleges of Pharmacy, page 3335

Three indices covering the educational announcements may be found on the next four pages: 1st, according to type of institution; 2d, by states; 3d, by alphabetical arrangement.

Requests for additional information concerning any of the institutions designated will receive prompt attention; but in order to serve inquirers most effectively, it will be necessary to know the type of institution desired, the section of country considered most convenient, the amount to be expended, the religious denomination (if any) preferred, and any special characteristics of the student that may assist in making suggestions.

Before choice of an institution is finally made, it is often necessary to consult school or college catalogues, and to correspond directly with the heads of the schools or colleges which seem best to meet requirements.

Address all inquiries to The Educational Department, WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA, Marquis Publications Building, Chicago-11, Illinois, USA.

A PIONEER

In A Democratic Concept Of Higher Education In America

The story of New York University is that of a pioneer striking for new horizons, seeking always to serve society through education and research for all of the people.

In 1831, when the University was founded, the few colleges and universities that existed were operated in the aristocratic tradition for students from privileged families. The concept of higher education for all who could qualify and benefit, conducted in the heart of a great city, was new and different. But it is the essence of the democratic idea, and it has been New York University's guiding educational philosophy from the start.

New York University has provided educational inspiration and opportunity for thousands who might not otherwise have enjoyed the great privilege of improving their minds and their capacity to live useful, productive, satisfying lives. Through the years, as it has functioned in the sound pattern set by its founders, the University has enrolled more than half a million persons. It has a distinguished record of service to city, state, and nation.

Pioneering ventures include the establishment of the first university chair of fine arts, the first university teacher-training school, the first university school of aeronautics, the first university school of retailing, one of the first university schools of business, and one of the first engineering colleges.

Like all privately controlled and privately supported educational institutions, its perpetuation is a challenge to private enterprise in America.

DEDICATED TO THE PURpose of giving emphasis to the fundamental place of religion in education: in formulating a Christian philosophy of life, in developing Christian character, and in the establishment of a Christian social order, Mercer University offers students all the advantages of experience, strength, and influence that characterizes this long established co-educational institution.

Located in a cultural center of the old South, Mercer University is surrounded by traditions of the best in education and offers opportunity for Christian development at a cost surprisingly low for an institution of its type.

pays for a complete scholastic year including tuition, board, laundry, and all fees.

Mercer University is a standard, A Grade Senior College, and a member of the Southern Association of Colleges since 1911; the Association of Georgia Colleges; and the American Association of Law Schools.

The College of Arts and Sciences offers courses leading to A. B. and M. Ed. degrees, with Pre-professional Divisions of Christianity, Economics, Business Administration, Education, Medicine and Dentistry. The Law School offers the LL. B. degree.

Mercer alumni have made outstanding records in business, law, education, medicine, social service, and all walks of life. And today students at Mercer, who come from all sections of the country, are making equally fine records in scholarship, athletics, debating, and other student activities.

The University has splendid and modern housing facilities, lending a home-like atmosphere, which enable the student to do his best work.

Mercer offers and encourages a wholesome social life on the campus for both men and women, and recognizes the value of development that comes through dramatic, social, literary, and athletic pursuits. The University is located at Macon, near the geographic center of the State, and is easily accessible to all parts of Georgia, and to the entire Southeast. Operated on a quarterly basis. Registration in Sept., Jan., March, and June.

WILLIAM JEWELL COLLEGE

Five miles from Kansas City
Known nationally as

"The Campus of Achievement"

FOUNDED IN 1849

The personal achievement of its graduates is the primary aim of this liberal arts College and is the reason it is known nationally as "The Campus of Achievement." These factors assure each student the maximum opportunity to attain success in his chosen field and at the same time make a contribution to others:

1. William Jewell limits its resident student body to 700 in order to preserve an indispensable ingredient to education—personal association with teachers and fellow students.
2. With 52 student organizations, all students have the opportunity to practice the qualities and responsibilities of leadership.
3. An all-Christian faculty of such academic merit that William Jewell is approved by the highest accrediting agencies in the United States.
4. As the home of the Hubert Eaton Foundation for the Science and Art of Persuasion, William Jewell offers students the opportunity to acquire skills which are necessary to high attainment in all businesses and professions.

Therefore, prominent alumni in 48 states in all walks of life have made William Jewell College "The Campus of Achievement."

OKLAHOMA CITY UNIVERSITY

An Independent, Co-educational, Standard Christian College

Oklahoma City University emphasizes the development of sound scholarship and solid character, and recognizes that the fullest development of each student can be attained only through individual counseling and guidance in an atmosphere that is distinctly Christian.

Oklahoma City University is not a municipal institution, but a private, independent college of the Liberal Arts with definite obligations in the matter of character-building and moral attitudes as well as pure learning.

The University, which had its origin in the very critical needs of the young Oklahoma pioneers, has grown steadily with the state and may be expected to render an increasingly valuable service to the cause of Christian education in the state of Oklahoma and the adjacent Southwest.

Accredited courses at Oklahoma City University are offered through the College of Arts and Sciences, School of Business, School of Industrial Arts, School of Law and School of Music.

Scholarship and Christian Character

Union's purpose is to train young men and women in an environment that makes for both high scholarship and Christian character. All phases of the life of the institution, whether classroom, extra-curricular, allied activities, social activities, or disciplinary action, are recognized as having educational value. For more than one hundred years the college has been sending its graduates out to assume places of leadership in all fields of service.

Operated by the Tennessee Baptist Convention, emphasis is placed not only upon the training of the body and the mind, but also upon the development of the moral and religious nature. The student body itself is composed of many denominations, but the need for Christian living is stressed.

Independent Education— Essential To "The American Way"

The University of Kansas City believes that private universities are essential to the American way of life, that they constitute an important bulwark to freedom in private life, in business, the professions and government. They are the expression in education of a similarly cherished American ideal, personal enterprise in a democratic society. The University of Kansas City is a young university, untrammeled by tradition or control, free to face the future as the needs of the unpredictable future become evident. Although it prides itself on youthfulness and unprecedented growth, reversing the more common boast of tradition and age, its philosophy of education is anchored upon a rock—the humanities. Students are urged first to gain a point of view and a body of knowledge that makes for mature, imaginative, useful living, after which specialization is encouraged. Just as character is all important to the continued success of the "American way," so is it significant in the success of the student at the University of Kansas City.

BAKER UNIVERSITY

Founded in 1858 Co-educational

Baker University exists for the sake of serving her students by, first, providing a broad background of general education. This aims at competency in communication skills, in knowledge of man's social world, in health skills, in understanding of the scientific method and its contribution to the world.

The second purpose is to provide some field of concentration in which the student may specialize, such as Business, Education, Home Economics, Journalism, Music and Fine Arts, Social Work, and the pre-professional studies Engineering, Law, Medicine, Personnel Work, and Theology.

Religious living is the third purpose at Baker. Definite programs in and out of the class room develop religious life as a normal, wholesome and creative experience on the part of the faculty and students.

SOUTHWESTERN AT MEMPHIS

GENUINENESS is the Keynote at Southwestern

The ideal of genuineness, the absence of all that is false and shoddy, is the ruling principle at Southwestern. This ideal is expressed in its faculty, in careful selection of the student body, in the planning and content of its curricula, and in its enduring Gothic buildings, with small residential units of the English university type.

American higher education was founded on the liberal tradition, which is fundamental to a civilization of free men. Through the years Southwestern has remained true to this tradition. From the early days when the necessity for character development was unquestioned, through the years when it was doubted, and into the present when world developments have again emphasized its need, Southwestern has always regarded the development of character as of at least equal importance to intellectual progress.

Every candidate for a degree must pursue a nonsectarian course of Bible study. Common procedure today in many colleges, this program was first inaugurated in this country by Southwestern.

Every student is selected as one likely to be qualified by intellect and character to cooperate heartily in an Honor System covering all phases of student life.

Every upperclass student has the privilege of individual instruction through a tutorial plan covering about one-fifth of his or her work. In addition, further individual development is provided in a series of Honors Courses for the superior student.

We will be glad to have you visit Southwestern when you are in Memphis

GUILFORD COLLEGE

FULLY ACCREDITED CHARTERED 1834

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES

From the time of its establishment Guilford College has attempted to provide a broad, liberal culture in home-like surroundings and under strong religious influence. More recently the attempt has been made to interweave the religious teaching with the whole curriculum in such a way as to help the student not only to build ideals of action and relate himself to the whole social organization, but also, through the knowledge of the literary, scientific and social achievements of the race, to see life as a whole.

GUILFORD COLLEGE AND ITS CAMPUS

Guilford College, located five miles from Greensboro, N. C., in the heart of the Piedmont Plateau—a region rich in historical significance and particularly favored by even climatic conditions, occupies 292 acres of beautiful campus and woodlands. The school was founded by and is under the direction of the Society of Friends.

Enrollment is limited to a group small enough to permit every student to become intimately acquainted with faculty members and with every other student. The ratio of faculty members to students is approximately one to ten. Majors in eighteen academic subjects, a physical education program designed to reach every student, and a full program of extra curricular activities are offered at Guilford. The quality of program is high in relation to the annual cost of $760.00. Fully Accredited. Chartered 1834.

DICKINSON COLLEGE

Founded 1773

A SMALL COLLEGE . . .
WITH NATIONAL PRESTIGE

• Over 180 years of leadership in providing a truly liberal education. • Close faculty-student relations, with emphasis on good teaching and high scholarship.

Emphasis on background preparation for Law • Teaching • The Ministry • Engineering • Medicine • Voluntary R.O.T.C. Training.

During its nearly two centuries of existence, Dickinson College has devoted itself to the education of the type of men and women who have led America to greatness. Today, when leadership is so much needed in the world, Dickinson renews its devotion to this traditional objective.

Dickinson should appeal to those students who have the desire and the capacity to reach positions of leadership. It should commend itself to those patrons of education who believe that the training given in the small liberal arts college offers the best hope for the future of our country and our world.

FRANKLIN COLLEGE

FRANKLIN, INDIANA

Fully accredited and possessed of an excellent faculty, Franklin College has followed a conservative policy and has not sought to become a large institution, but rather to conduct a high grade small college.

FOUNDED 1834

Franklin College is now well into its second century of service to the youth of the mid-west, inspired by the high traditions of the past toward an even more glorious future.

Intimate contacts, friendly cooperation, and whole-hearted participation in all activities are calculated to develop an appreciation of worthwhile educational, moral, social and religious values.

The Franklin College Ideal

To love truth and to seek it above material things; to ennoble and be ennobled by a common fellowship; to keep the energies of life at full tide; to cultivate an appreciation of the beautiful; to work well and to play with zest; to have an open mind; to value friends, striving to be worthy of them; to live simply and with reasonable economy; to find joy in work well done; to have faith, hope and charity; to be an earnest disciple in the school of Him who brings the abundant life; such is the spirit and ideal of Franklin College, whose motto is "Christianity and Culture." To all who share this spirit and are eager for the pursuit of high things, we offer a hearty welcome. . . . . .

From its origin in 1846, Mount Union College has admitted men and women on an equal basis and thus became one of the first institutions of college rank to graduate men and women on an exact equality. Always emphatically religious in its principles, it has been singularly free from sectarian bias.

The College seeks through a progressive program to prepare students to live intelligently, creatively, and efficiently in a complex society. Good teaching is considered of major importance, and every effort is made to provide close personal association between faculty members and students. Both the curricular and extracurricular programs are designed for maximum development of the individual student as he works closely with other members of the student body and with the faculty. Mental, moral and spiritual growth were and continue to be guiding principles of the Institution.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE

Providing the Answer to the Challenge of Today

For more than sixty years Millsaps College has offered to the youth of the South the best in higher education. It is recognized by the General Board of Christian Education of the Methodist Church as one of the strongest and most valuable institutions in the connection. . . . Millsaps is a Liberal Arts college and measures up to all that is best in the Liberal Arts Ideal. It seeks to instill an appreciation of the things in life which really count, the ultimate values. In the words of a prominent graduate, "Millsaps 'goes in for' the things which widen one's vision . . . which enable one to look for the horizon which others have not yet seen."

The record, the spirit and the future of Millsaps College provide an answer to the challenge contained in a world distraught with fears and chaotic economy. Here is opportunity alike for prospective student and prospective patron.

KING COLLEGE

Founded 1867

A Tradition Of The Past That Gives Promise For The Future

It might be said of King College that none in America resembles so much in ideals, campus and general environment the sort of institution that was the objective of the early founding fathers. Christian education and scholarship were the intimate moral and financial concern of the inspired men and women who made this country great and it is in this same tradition that both students and patrons of King College look upon its future.

King College is a standard, four-year college of limited enrollment where full advantage is taken of the opportunities for self-realization that are the result of close relationships between inspired teachers and earnest students. It reflects with pride upon the record of its past and looks forward with confidence to the possibilities of the future.

3000 Frederica · Owensboro, Kentucky

Fully aware of the urgent character of our day and the opportunity offered the small liberal arts college in the training of men and women best calculated to meet this emergency, Transylvania College has reaffirmed its devotion to the educational philosophy that has in the past produced leaders in times of national crisis. At the same time it has altered that philosophy to fit the modern revolution in scientific and social thinking.

Transylvania is an old college, antedating the Commonwealth of Kentucky, and it is identified with such well-known figures as Henry Clay, Jefferson Davis, Stephen Fuller Austin, Benjamin Winslow Dudley, James Lane Allen and Mathew Jouett. It is also distinctly a Christian college of limited enrollment, therefore offering opportunity for individual growth through intimacy of understanding. It emphasizes the humanities and teaches students how to live and assume responsibilities, after which specialization assumes broader scope and meaning.

A good place to go to school and a good place to make an investment in American Ideals.

Ignorant and free?

A nation that is one can't be the other. Thomas Jefferson said it better: "If a nation expects to be both ignorant and free, it expects what never was and never will be."

Tremendous are the responsibilities of educators to lead young Americans to the treasure of intellectual freedom with its components of intellectual honesty and intellectual courage.

Priceless is knowing and loving the living Christ. Without that, can there be any wisdom anywhere?

In this evangelical Christian liberal arts college, in the matters of mind and spirit, there can never be equivocation. Founded in 1845—one name, one place, one purpose: Christian higher education.

CAPITAL UNIVERSITY

Serving Christian Citizenship Through Christian Culture

Capital University was founded over one hundred years ago by the Lutheran Church.

Possessing all of the advantages of the small, Christian liberal arts college, it aims to prepare young men and women for their chosen vocations. The Conservatory of Music is one of the major departments.

Broadly speaking Capital University aims to serve the cause of Christian citizenship by the inculcation of Christian culture.

Culturally it aims at mastery of the tools and methods of reflective thought and ability for self-directed, critical thinking and expression. It seeks a general comprehension of science and sufficient understanding of history to appreciate our heritage. It fosters a discriminating loyalty to Family, State and Church, together with a Christian philosophy that unifies life's purposes and expresses itself unaffectedly in worship, work and living.

PHILOSOPHY & OBJECTIVES

Hiram College, now over one hundred years old, is a small, privately endowed, co-educational college of liberal arts. Founded by the Disciples of Christ, it is definitely Christian in heritage and purpose, but non-sectarian in control, outlook, and teaching. It stands for spiritual enrichment, sound moral and intellectual development, the broad ideal of the liberal arts and a thoroughly democratic community life. The College fosters self-engendered discipline of mind and body and seeks to adapt training to individual needs through a careful guidance program.

SINGLE COURSE STUDY PLAN

Under the Single Course Study Plan, the result of successful pioneering begun at Hiram in 1934, the attention of student and teacher is concentrated on only one course each term. Effort is not dispersed over five concurrent courses, all competing for the student's time. Five seven-week terms constitute the college year, with the usual thirty hours of academic credit. The student profits by the unification of his intellectual effort and by the ability of the instructor, teaching only a single class, to give careful attention to the individual.

The Fulfillment of a Need

An independent, fully accredited college for men and women, Wilkes College offers courses leading to the bachelor's degree in arts and sciences, secondary and elementary education, nursing and business education, commerce and finance, and engineering.

Recognizing that professional competence alone is not enough to aid the individual in his life quest or in his contribution to the free society in which he lives, the College seeks to give the student a general education for development of the "whole man."

Originally conceived as a junior college affiliated with Bucknell University to answer Wyoming Valley's need for an institution of higher learning, Wilkes attained an independent legal status as a four-year college in 1947. In its twenty years, it has grown to be more than a community college. The increase in the number of resident students this year necessitated the addition of a sixth dormitory, further expanding the college service area. Its outreach and its interest in the affairs of man have made it a college for the community of mankind.

ROLLINS COLLEGE

The "Rollins Plan" Has Proved Its Effectiveness

Rollins College believes that effective education is, in large measure, self-education. In an era characterized by mass education and production-line teaching techniques, Rollins has stood, and will continue to stand, in an almost unique position with respect to its individualized approach to learning. Small classes, with emphasis on active student participation, small-group living units, the fitting of programs to students, rather than students to programs, provide the intellectual basis for the well known "Rollins Plan." Proof of the effectiveness of this philosophy of education is contained in the record of Rollins graduates — in business, home-making, education, the arts, professions and sciences.

Rollins is a co-educational college of liberal arts and sciences, fully accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. It is a member of the American Association of Colleges, American Council on Education, College Entrance Examination Board, Florida Association of Colleges and Universities, and the National Association of Schools of Music.

SPARTANBURG JUNIOR COLLEGE

PURPOSES:

1. To provide educational opportunities for young men and women of limited means.
2. To develop leadership through work experience.
3. To combine cultural Christian education and vocational education through a work-study program.

A DEMOCRATIC SPIRIT — A HOMELIKE ATMOSPHERE

There are no wealthy students at Spartanburg Junior College. All are of limited means and all are permitted to participate in a democratic work-study program that builds self-reliance and sound Christian character. The college is controlled by the General Board of Missions of the Methodist Church, but the student body is non-sectarian. Discipline is maintained by a benevolent paternalism which is a natural continuation in the college of the control and homelike atmosphere of the home.

CENTRAL COLLEGE

With Which Is Included The Swinney Conservatory of Music

FOUNDED 1854——————FULLY ACCREDITED

Central College is the only college of Missouri Methodism, being a merger of several former Methodist institutions that existed in this state. It seeks to undergird and reinforce all of its activities in such a way as to offer the Christian philosophy of life to every one of its students.

Central College gives definite vocational direction to its students, while seeking to enrich life through application of the arts and sciences to everyday activities. It seeks to inculcate love of learning, devotion to truth, abhorrence of prejudice and appreciation of the viewpoints of others, plus the ability to use the mind incisively and constructively for the solution of current problems. In brief the goal at Central College is the well-rounded training of young people to become worthy and effective citizens in a Christian, democratic society.

HENDRIX COLLEGE

Personalized and Christian

The aim of Hendrix College is to provide a personalized and realistic education, fitted to the individual student and the needs of the day. In a real sense the college tries to fit itself to the student rather than the student to the college. A highly flexible course of study, an extensive advisory system, a guidance test program, a workably small student body and a relatively large faculty assure maximum development of the individual and practical training in Christian ideals of service.

A Methodist college with students from all denominations, Hendrix stands for high educational standards and high ideals of Christian citizenship. It is located in the heart of Arkansas, thirty miles north of Little Rock.

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE

FOUNDED 1787

Chartered As A College 1829

A Glorious Past

Georgetown College was chartered more than a century ago, but as an educational institution its origin dates back to 1787. Its approximately seven thousand graduates and ex-students have played vital roles in establishing the traditions that are America's heritage, shedding light first on the vast wilderness west of the Alleghenies and later throughout the entire Mississippi Valley.

A Purposeful Future

The purpose of Georgetown College is to develop the entire personality, the body, the mind and the heart. In the year of the institution's origin that great expression of lighted minds and hearts, the Constitution of the United States, was adopted. Today Georgetown College again sees the crying need for men and women of lighted hearts and dedicates itself to this supreme objective.

Located in a small, cultured and historic community twelve miles north of Lexington, Ky., Georgetown College is fully accredited and offers courses leading to A.B., B.S., B.M.Ed., B.S. in Commerce, B.S. in Medical Technology degrees.

A good place to go to school. A good place to make an investment in ideals.

ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE

A Pilot College in Liberal Arts Education

St. John's offers a single non-elective program in the liberal arts in the belief that young men and women should have the balance and breadth of a liberal education before they seek to master the specific skills of a profession or vocation. The purpose of the program is to develop in each student the ability to think, to judge, and to communicate.

This is accomplished in small classes using the discussion method as opposed to the lecture system. The students study and discuss some of the important books that have shaped our Western Tradition and in support of this discussion they do rigorous work in language, mathematics, music and the physical and biological sciences. A weekly lecture and concert series completes the program.

St. John's College limits its enrollment to 300 students and maintains a student-faculty ratio of eight to one. Its graduates have entered a wide range of professions and vocations and have distinguished themselves in graduate work.

UNIVERSITY of REDLANDS

The University of Redlands is dedicated to the perpetuation of Christian ideals as the basis of American democracy. Today, in an era where specialization and scientific skill have proved inadequate to cope with broader human problems and where the greatest intelligences are looking to the colleges and universities with obligations in the matter of character as well as learning to furnish the men and women who will lead the world to peace and recovery, the University of Redlands offers advantages uncommon in the area of which it is a part.

Fully accredited, with an excellent faculty and sound leadership, the University of Redlands is equally a good place to go to school and a good place to make an investment in American democracy. Courses lead to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Music, Bachelor of Science in Nursing, Master of Arts and Master of Music.

PACE COLLEGE

Serving the Metropolitan Area

Pace College occupies a position unique in the educational field. It is a college which combines a decidedly practical bent with a strong liberal arts offering. Located in the heart of the world's greatest metropolis, in its own 16-story building, it brings educational and work opportunities to many who otherwise might be denied the vocational and cultural training that means success in today's business world.

The School of Accountancy Practice, The School of Business Administration, and The School of Liberal Arts have been attended by more than 70,000 students since the founding of the institution a half-century ago. The effectiveness of the training at Pace is evidenced by the fact that the number of its graduates in Who's Who in America can be compared favorably with some of the country's leading four-year liberal arts colleges.

Randolph-Macon College—For Men

Chartered 1830

Randolph Macon College for Men is the oldest Methodist college in America. For over a century it has made diligent effort to create and maintain an atmosphere helpful to the growth of virile Christian character, free from the destructive elements that weaken the spiritual life of young men. That it has succeeded is attested by the illustrious records of its graduates.

A member institution of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, of the Association of American Colleges, and of the Southern University Conference. On the approved list of the Association of American Universities. Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science and provides carefully arranged pre-professional courses leading to medicine, law, engineering, and the ministry. The College takes special pride in the large percentage of its graduates who continue their training in professional and graduate schools.

BUILDING CHRISTIAN MANHOOD

Building Christian manhood is the task of Presbyterian Junior College. It seeks to develop the whole man into the finest, well-rounded Christian character, and to prepare each youth for effective living as an individual and a citizen.

Located in the center of the area settled by the early Scottish highlanders before the Revolution, the town of Maxton prides itself upon a tradition of simplicity, character and culture. Free from the distractions of a large city, and enveloped in an atmosphere of cordial hospitality, the student is offered unusual educational advantages in our preparatory and junior college departments.

A TRULY MODERN INTERPRETATION OF THE LIBERAL ARTS IDEAL

Pennsylvania College For Women bases its appeal for support of patrons and students on the fact that it has a definite, well-thought-out philosophy of education which attains an up-to-date interpretation of the Liberal Arts ideal. It believes that while the process of education must be individualized, the goals of education are the same for all and that the marks of an educated person are respect for truth, the ability to think imaginatively, the ability to act intelligently and the possession of a sense of direction even in today's chaotic world. Achievement of these goals is facilitated by a carefully planned and highly reputed curriculum, an excellent faculty and a carefully chosen student body—three elements that make for distinction.

BRENAU COLLEGE

JOSIAH CRUDUP Ph.D., President

A Southern Christian College Unaffiliated with Any Denomination

The place of Brenau among the women's colleges of the country is unique. Located in a section where practically all independent colleges are traditionally church-related colleges, and where character and morals are of equal concern with scholarship, Brenau is distinctly Christian in character although unrelated to any denomination.

It believes itself to be in an advantageous position to interpret the liberal arts ideal unreservedly, with cosmopolitan emphasis on the moral and spiritual responsibilities so necessary to the preservation of the Home, the Church and the American way of life.

Location and Control

Brenau College is incorporated not-for-profit, is non-sectarian and is controlled by a non-sectarian Board of Trustees. Its faculty and curriculum have been chosen in the belief that many phases involved in the college education of young women are not identical with the problems encountered in the college education of young men.

Located in Gainesville, Ga., about 50 miles Northeast of Atlanta and about 1300 ft. above sea-level, the college lies within view of the Blue Ridge Mountains in a region known for its cool, healthful, invigorating climate. The campus of 28 acres and 30 buildings is pervaded throughout with a homelike, cultural atmosphere.

MOUNT MARY COLLEGE

Fully Accredited Standard Catholic College for Women

Mount Mary College has a history that goes back to the beginnings of the state itself. It grew out of institutions established by the School Sisters of Notre Dame who came to Wisconsin in 1850.

Mount Mary is in a real sense a vigorous, modern college for the Catholic higher education of women. It is concerned with the entire human personality and strives by its program to develop well-balanced personal lives. Its integration is based fundamentally on a religious attitude toward the world, supplemented by the humanistic.

Good character is essential for admission to the college, for remaining in the college and for graduation from the college. Patrons interested in expanding educational opportunities to Catholic young women of character will find Mount Mary an excellent investment in higher education.

MARYGROVE COLLEGE

Philosophy of Education

In Marygrove education, traditional Christian liberal arts ideals find contemporary application. A closely integrated program in the hands of a faculty with sound convictions stimulates students to the development of personal and social effectiveness. The college is distinctive in its use of campus and community resources as a laboratory for teaching the elemental values in responsible living: spiritual, economic, civic, social, cultural. It emphasizes complete womanliness in women as the best corrective for many contemporary social disorders.

Education at Marygrove Is Practical

Marygrove is fully accredited and offers a substantial four-year program in the arts and sciences. It advocates specific occupational training for every student and maintains an efficient program of personal and vocational guidance.

The college is located in northwest Detroit, within convenient distance of all important centers of interest. The plant is set on a beautifully wooded 80-acre campus and every department is complete with modern equipment.

THE COLLEGE OF SAINT ROSE

Fully Accredited

Conducted by the Sisters of Saint Joseph of Carondelet

ALBANY NEW YORK

The College of Saint Rose was established in 1920 by the Sisters of Saint Joseph of Carondelet in response to a widespread demand of the Catholic clergy and laity. Its fundamental purpose is to instill into the minds and hearts of the young women it educates a thoroughly Catholic concept of life, while at the same time illuminating their understanding of the American way of life, and training them for intelligent participation in local, national and international affairs.

It seeks to equip each girl with a broad general education through study of the liberal arts, to cultivate correct habits, attitudes and skills, produce ease and effectiveness of expression and develop love of the truth which gives meaning and direction to the acquisition of knowledge.

The COLLEGE of ST. CATHERINE

CENTENARY JUNIOR COLLEGE

Educational Objectives:

To meet the individual needs of young women Centenary offers a wide choice of courses in liberal arts and sciences, cultural and vocational subjects. The flexibility of the Centenary Plan, which permits a student to take a variety of courses, widens her horizons and helps her select the field in which she may expect her greatest satisfaction and success. Programs of study leading to the A. A. Degree are arranged in conference with trained counselors according to each student's interests. Some plan to transfer to four-year colleges and universities, some prepare directly for careers; others wish a general education for living.

A nonsectarian college of 450 residential students, Centenary helps prepare young women to lead rich, satisfying lives in the Christian-democratic culture of the western world. Some of these objectives are achieved in the classroom, some on the spacious playing fields, and others in the well-planned programs of social and recreational experiences.

A fully-accredited two-year college with an attractive, modern plant, Centenary is situated on a 40-acre campus of surpassing natural beauty in the highland and lake region of northwestern New Jersey within easy driving distance of the principal metropolitan areas of the East.

The DANA HALL Schools

Pine Manor This fully accredited junior college offers general education in the fields of Liberal and Fine Arts. Required basic subjects are supplemented by a wide variety of elective courses including interior design, journalism, vocal and instrumental music, dramatics, and modern dance. Pine Manor is situated on a country campus half an hour from Boston. Dormitory life is conducted on the small house plan. The French House is a specialty. There is a full athletic program for all indoor and outdoor sports with emphasis on riding.

Dana Hall The scope of this well-known school includes not only a College Preparatory Course but a well-selected General Course for students who do not desire to enter college. Dana Hall represents thorough scholarship, general culture, and the many advantages of a large, highly organized school. Its graduates are admitted without examination to all the leading colleges for women that accept students by certificate. The school possesses the advantages of both country and city life. Gymnasium work in a large and thoroughly equipped building, field sports, and a stable of unusually fine saddle horses are in charge of competent physical directors. Under proper chaperonage the students enjoy the rare opportunities which Boston offers in music and art.

Dana Hall Junior School Boarding and day students are admitted to grades 7, 8, and 9 which comprise the lower division of Dana Hall. Students in this group have their own faculty, dormitories, and dining facilities but share some of the physical, academic, and administrative advantages of Dana Hall. Individual attention and a homelike atmosphere are emphasized along with an academic program of high standard under the direction of well-qualified teachers.

Tenacre Country Day School This is the elementary division of the Dana Hall Schools, consisting of grades kindergarten through sixth and open to both boys and girls. The school is planned to accommodate 100 to 150 students with well-equipped classrooms and outdoor and indoor play areas. Courses are planned to follow the best modern educational practices. An excellent program of physical training includes such indoor and outdoor sports as riding, tennis, hockey, baseball, basketball, and skating.

BRADFORD
JUNIOR COLLEGE

FOUNDED in 1803 as Bradford Academy, Bradford Junior College is the oldest institution in New England for the higher education of women. From the earliest days it has offered courses beyond the secondary school level, and it was the first junior college for women to meet the standards for junior college membership set by the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

The College is located in Bradford, Massachusetts, thirty miles north of Boston. It offers various liberal arts programs that serve as a good foundation for life as well as for further study in a senior college or university. Library, laboratories, and all other facilities are admirably suited to the chosen enrollment of three hundred young women.

AIMS AND OBJECTIVES

BRADFORD believes that one of its main functions is to help its students develop in the first two years of college a sense of personal responsibility for their own and the common welfare. Able counselors in close personal association help students to select and pursue clearly defined educational objectives. The complete integration of all phases of college life, of traditional education and the diverse activities of an active campus culture, results in a unified educational experience invaluable for further education and later years.

LASELL JUNIOR COLLEGE

FOUNDED 1851

Objectives The aim of Lasell Junior College is to help young women discover themselves; to guide them toward high ideals; to develop in them a better understanding of the art of living harmoniously with others and to help them acquire a workable philosophy of life.

A Century of Tradition And Service Founded in 1851, the college embarks on its second century of service in the education of women with a wealth of tradition and accomplishment to inspire the executive officers, the faculty and the student body. Nonsectarian, it has always kept abreast of progress made in the education of women while at the same time it has steadily maintained the ideals of its founders.

High Standards The liberal arts ideal forms the core of its educational philosophy, but the school has always maintained high standards of work in business training as well as music, art and dramatics. It was a pioneer in offering courses in home economics as a part of its regular curriculum.

Many Advantages Of Location Lasell Junior College is only ten miles from Boston in a quiet and beautiful residential suburb with delightful walks, drives and the Charles River in close proximity. Convenient access to Boston provides opportunities for seeing and hearing the best in music and art, as well as making available the best in educational specialists.

SULLINS COLLEGE

"Sullins is a junior college for girls with the last two years of high school included in the program. Established in 1870, the school began construction of its present plant in the suburbs of Bristol in 1918. The two year college program includes both foundation and terminal programs in liberal arts, home economics, secretarial, merchandising, radio, dramatics, music, art, physical education and ballet. Students represent over thirty-five states and eight foreign countries. It is believed that the wide representation among students, alumnae and faculty makes the college the most national of all girls' colleges of its size. Both the college and high school are fully accredited. The campus of 325 acres has a private lake, stables and all recreational facilities.

"The college is endowed, non-profit, non-denominational. The faculty ratio of one teacher for each nine students and the progressive guidance system assure individual attention. Tuition, residence and meals $1250.00. Rooms are modern and uniform, each with connecting bath."

BRISTOL VIRGINIA

SOUTHERN SEMINARY & JUNIOR COLLEGE

A SCHOOL OF CHARACTER

Southern Seminary's purpose is to educate the whole girl, intellectually, spiritually, physically and socially and to fit her to live effectively in the world of today. Each detail of its location, environment and general program contributes happily to this purpose. Supplementing and enhancing a guidance program which seeks to direct the expression of unique personality traits into channels of greatest self-realization is an atmosphere of home life which permeates every activity and cultivates those attitudes of mind and heart which are not acquired from books or lecturers. The school is located in the Blue Ridge Mountains seven miles from historic and cultural Lexington where the beauty and traditions of the surroundings act as an inspiration to health and the intellect.

Administrative stability and proved objectives, characteristic of America's most successful educational institutions, is marked at Southern Seminary by a record of but two changes in administration since its founding in the year 1868.

EDUCATIONAL GUIDANCE

Education of young women, under highly favorable conditions, is offered at Stratford College. The individual student, at the same time, is directed to pursuits in life for which she is best adapted. Courses of study include English, Foreign Languages, History, Science, Mathematics, Bible, Education, Journalism, Music (Piano, Voice), Art, including Interior Decoration and Costume Designing, the Speech Arts, Secretarial Science, Medical Technology, Pre-Nursing, and Merchandising. The College is a non-profit corporation, not affiliated with any denomination but its spirit is always Christian. A preparatory department is maintained which prepares the student for any college. Graduates of the junior college courses may transfer to senior colleges and universities.

LOCATION

The location of the College, near the southern line of Virginia in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, with a strikingly beautiful campus of thirteen acres, is recognized as one of the most attractive in the Atlantic States. Tennis courts, a basketball court and grounds for hockey, volley ball and archery, afford every opportunity for recreation and athletics. Horseback riding is popular. This region is widely known for its equable climate and health-giving qualities.

TRADITIONS

Several chapters mark the progress of the school. Beginning as a Methodist College about a hundred years ago, it became the Danville College for Young Ladies, later the Randolph-Macon School for Girls and since 1930 has operated under its present name. Buildings and grounds have been enlarged and beautified and equipment thoroughly modernized. Stratford carries the name of the ancestral home of the notable Lee family.

MOUNT IDA

FOUNDED 1899

Education in an Inspirational Setting

Mount Ida was founded in 1899 and today its graduates are found in every State in the Union as well as a score of foreign countries. It introduced courses on the Junior College level as early as 1914, and considers itself a pioneer in this field of education.

It is located in Newton just outside of Boston in the lovely Oak Hill Village section. The campus covers eighty acres of rolling grounds and pine woodlands, on what was formerly the estate of Robert Gould Shaw, II. The buildings and grounds are an inspiration in themselves.

Mount Ida offers a two-fold program: one to prepare young women for transfer to Senior Colleges, and another to provide a substantial training for those interested in careers in specialized fields. Culture and the social graces have always been the concern of the school since the days of its founding.

Of College Preparation

Northampton School For Girls is distinctly a college preparatory school and possesses an enviable record in the successful admission of its students to the country's foremost institutions of higher learning. It provides a type of preparation that enables a girl to face college with robust health, sound academic foundations, and a confident, buoyant spirit. It believes that it is important for girls to learn to work under their own power and does not forget that in college girls are expected to work almost entirely on their own initiative. Scholastic achievement, the development of womanhood, of well-adjusted personalities, of intelligent and sympathetic interest in world affairs, of the spirit of service to the community and a love of learning—these are the goals at Northampton.

Graham Eckes Schools

A Non-Profit Corporation Founded 1926

Graham-Eckes School has only boarding students. It is limited by charter to fifty in the Boys School and fifty in the Girls School. It was founded thirty years ago at the request of a group who wished to have in the far South a school following the routines, disciplines and academic programs of the older New England preparatory schools. It is fully accredited to the Florida State Board of Education and the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and approved by the Federal Government for foreign students. A Cum Laude Chapter was granted March 1952.

One hundred per cent of its graduates have been admitted to college since its founding, ninety per cent to the ranking eastern colleges. The College Entrance Examination Board has had an examination center at the school for the past twenty years.

The school is not co-educational in the accepted sense of the word, the boys have a five and one-half acre campus lying west of County Road to Lake Worth, the girls have a three-acre campus east of County Road to the Atlantic Ocean. The student body and Alumni represent thirty-eight states and eighteen foreign countries. Vacancies are assigned with consideration for geographical representation, age levels and a cross-section of American and foreign youth. Ten per cent of the gross income has been for scholarship aid.

There is a thorough college preparation and well-organized cultural, athletic and social program. Varsity teams enter Inter-scholastic and Intra-mural competition. The faculty and staff number thirty-one. Swimming, sailing, tennis are major sports. There is a work program for all.

The School That Specializes in the Preparation of Boys for

MASSACHUSETTS INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY

A school that for one hundred and twenty-eight years has successfully trained its students not only to pass entrance requirements, but also to achieve marked success after entering college or technical school.

Students are taught the art of study; the value of close and persistent application; to think clearly and to express themselves concisely and accurately.

For the past fifty years the school has specialized in the training of young men for the MASSACHUSETTS INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY and other schools of science and engineering. The courses in Mathematics, Physics, and Chemistry are therefore much broader in scope and more exacting in requirements than those usually given in preparatory schools. Much stress is laid also upon English, the importance of which for engineering students is more and more recognized by the colleges. The success of the school in this special preparation is attested by the fact that during the past twenty years the school has enrolled students from forty-eight foreign countries and forty-six of the United States.

PERKIOMEN SCHOOL

A Small School of Close Personal Attention

Perkiomen is a small school where individual supervision is an actuality both inside and outside of the classroom. Boys are taught how to study and are challenged to an intellectual curiosity and a personal achievement. The School seeks to provide experience which will nourish and develop manly responsibility, and instill the desire to maintain high ideals and a wish for a life of service to others. The campus life is homelike, wholesome and democratic. "What we are, not who we are" is important at Perkiomen. The rural setting is conducive to good health and proper study habits. Graduates have made excellent records in the leading colleges of the country for over 80 years.

Distinguished By A Spirit Of Cooperation

The most important thing at Hebron Academy is the boy himself. The faculty is made up of experienced teachers who are interested in being and working with boys, not only in the classroom but in all phases of boarding school life. The boy's adjustment, progress and well-being are the concern, not only of every member of the faculty, but the headmaster himself, who is in close contact with every boy in the school. Studious habits, high ideals, enthusiastic participation and personal initiative are developed through subtle encouragement rather than by exhortation. A spirit of cooperation pervades every activity. The educational policies are conservative and directed solely toward preparation for college.

A CATHOLIC PREPARATORY SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Delbarton School is located in the hills west of Morristown, N. J., and is a resident and day school for boys. The Lower School is for seventh and eighth graders and the Upper School is for College preparation.

Founded in 1939 by the Benedictine monks under the leadership of Abbot Patrick M. O'Brien, the school answers the need for a select Catholic preparatory institution of high scholastic standards in a country atmosphere of beauty and historic significance.

Delbarton's record in preparing boys for college is outstanding and each year many boys have to be denied admittance. For this reason a program of expansion is underway. Because the school has made the most of gifts received in the past, the opportunity for investment in the future of Catholic youth is exceptional.

Origin and Aim The school was established for boys of character, position and ability who desire the best in education and Christian guidance at the lowest possible cost. Operated as a non-profit institution under the auspices of the Episcopal Church, it is nevertheless open to boys of other Christian faiths. High character, pure and healthy bodies, receptive minds and the spirit of unselfish service are the ideals of the student body and teaching personnel.

The Code of the Gentleman The relationships of the school are subject to the code of a Christian gentleman. An Honor System enforced by the boys themselves is firmly established and the atmosphere is that of a normal Christian home where the spirit of all concerned is steadfastly set against every tendency to destroy those ties of brotherhood which are designed to preserve the harmony of society.

Buildings and Grounds

The buildings in which the boys are housed are of brick and modern in every respect. Located in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains in a climate noted for its freedom from the extremes of heat and cold, Oak Ridge Military Institute has been known for a century as an ideal place to go to school. The Institute is fully accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and is a member of the Association of Military Schools and Colleges of the United States. It is unique in that it is owned largely by no single individual and is not operated for profit in the ordinary sense of the word. The ideals of the administration have consistently been to perpetuate character and reputation rather than to conduct an enterprise for personal gain. These ideals have reflected themselves in a student body of upright, manly character, and true southern culture, unaccompanied by the restricting influence of forced discipline. Culver Military Academy

700 students are attending the Academy from 41 states and 18 other countries during 1955-56. They enjoy excellent facilities on a large and beautiful campus on the shores of Lake Maxinkuckee. Three academic buildings costing $1,750,000 are now under construction. Recently alumni, patrons and friends provided a beautiful Memorial Chapel through gifts totaling $1,250,000.

The student body is made up of those who by previous school record, character, social background, and the results of scholastic tests, have the capacity to pursue college preparatory courses. During the school year 1954-55, over 700 Culver graduates were attending 191 different colleges and universities. Some of these institutions were Cornell, Dartmouth, Georgia Tech, Harvard, M. I. T., Michigan, Northwestern, Princeton, Stanford and Yale.

The Chapel—Culver Military Academy

The military training as given at Culver contributes immeasurably to each cadet's growth in poise, initiative, self-reliance, and self-confidence. He develops physically, mentally and spiritually and receives special training in the ability to lead and direct others effectively. Culver provides thorough preparation for a useful, successful and well-rounded life.

The success of the Culver philosophy of education is attested by the record of its graduates in the colleges of the country and by their success in later life. In the number of its alumni listed in Who's Who In America, Culver stands high among the leaders in the preparatory school field, non-military as well as military.

A School The Boy Will Like

Isn't that what you want for YOUR boy? You know how any boy will WORK when the work appeals to him and when the surroundings are congenial. That is one of the great secrets of the success of

St. John's Military Academy

This great school is famous for the ESPRIT of its students and the loyalty of its graduates. It takes a boy at the most impressionable period of his life and by a happy combination of military routine, study, and athletic sports, arouses first his INTEREST, which is quickly followed by loyalty and enthusiasm. With this attitude toward his school, the boy is ready to absorb much more than can be taught from books. The education at St. John's is not a mere "book learning" education. It is broader and deeper. It TRAINS a boy for life and MAKES HIM a GOOD citizen.

The good work of St. John's has been recognized by the government, which maintains a unit of the R. O. T. C. at the school under the supervision of Regular Army Officers.

HOWE MILITARY SCHOOL

HOWE, INDIANA

The dominant aim of Howe Military School is the development of character. It seeks to enroll only worthy boys who can appreciate Christian manliness and thorough scholarship. Founded in 1884 under the auspices of the Episcopal Church, and operated not for profit, it is known by its patrons for an inspired spirituality which guides boys morally, mentally and physically toward old-fashioned virtues via modern educational techniques.

Housed in a modern physical plant, boasting a handsome new academic building and swimming pool, as well as four new dormitories, and located on a beautiful ninety-acre campus, the school is fully accredited and offers every facility for a wide and varied program in an environment conducive to a happy, well-ordered life.

SEWANEE MILITARY ACADEMY

A School of Rich Traditions

Located on a plateau of the Cumberland Mountains, 2000 feet above the sea, the Sewanee Military Academy has always striven for the highest standards of conduct and scholarship. Its fine traditions, developed over many years, have always expressed themselves in the quality of its graduates and the inspiration of its faculty.

The academy receives within its portals only young gentlemen of the highest type, and it sends out into the world "Sewanee Gentlemen" who combine the rich heritage of cultural traditions and Southern courtesy with the superior judgement and balance of a well-trained mind.

SOUTHWESTERN MILITARY ACADEMY

FOUNDED 1924

A School for Boys From Six to Fourteen

Southwestern is an elementary school with grades from one to ten. Junior high school is as far as it goes, believing that the lives and attitudes of senior high school boys differ essentially from those in the lower grades and therefore cannot profitably be mixed.

A capable and enthusiastic staff of instructors, plus a student body which welcomes the virile, but bars the abnormal and subnormal, provides stimuli conducive to the attainment of high educational ideals.

The environment is that of an adequate, unostentatious physical plant, including modern class rooms, dormitories, gymnasium and chapel, surrounded by homes of beauty, culture and refinement.

MARMION MILITARY ACADEMY

A CATHOLIC MILITARY, BOARDING AND DAY PREPARATORY SCHOOL FOR YOUNG MEN

THE MISSION OF MARMION

The mission of Marmion Military Academy is to build men—for time and eternity—to graduate students adequately prepared for college or business, with particular emphasis on that development of character, which begets a sense of responsibility and an appreciation of the opportunities of American citizenship.

The school is conducted by the Benedictine Fathers, whose record in educational achievement down through the centuries forms one of the grandest chapters of history. The building of character in boys is based upon long experience and a tested educational philosophy.

Although the moral, or spiritual, is of first concern at Marmion, the mental and physical is not neglected, as indicated by the excellent teaching staff, the modern and beautiful plant, and the record of its graduates in colleges, the military forces, and civic life.

Pillsbury Academy

A Military School for Boys

Owatonna, Minnesota

FULLY ACCREDITED

PILLSBURY ACADEMY has an enviable record in preparing boys for college and for vigorous American citizenship.

PILLSBURY is dedicated to the purpose of assisting adolescent boys in developing all of their powers—physical, social, mental, and spiritual. It educates the whole boy.

PILLSBURY is splendidly equipped, in every detail, to accomplish the purpose for which it is dedicated. There are nine modern buildings including dormitories, gymnasium, armory, and a perfectly appointed mess hall. The swimming pool, indoor running track, new field house, hard surfaced tennis courts, a well-kept skating rink and spacious athletic fields are some of the features that appeal to the growing boy.

PILLSBURY builds its program around the individual cadet.

CARSON LONG INSTITUTE

Founded by Theodore K. Long

Our Business Is the Making of Men

CARSON LONG is a military school, possessing most of the advantages of that type of institution, plus educational and spiritual advantages that teach a boy How to Learn, How to Labor and How to Live. It develops sound bodies and disciplined minds, and in both athletics and education does not sacrifice the less favored to the star performer. Our business is the moulding of character, the making of men —the greatest business in the world.

Equipment and Location Are Among Best

Physical equipment is of the best. Beautiful campus and grounds of 50 acres, located in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, overlook the 20-mile expanse of Sherman's and Juniata Valleys. The school is 28 miles from Harrisburg, and a short distance from the Susquehanna River. Advantages of the location make themselves known in many ways, not the least of which is the lowered cost of living—making possible unusually low rates.

Rates $800.00—Extras: $300.00

HEALDS

BUSINESS COLLEGE | ENGINEERING COLLEGE

FOUNDED 1863

The effectiveness of training at Heald's Business and Engineering Colleges is attested by the success in later life of its graduates. In a survey made by the editors of Who's Who In America, Heald's ranked first among all schools of this type west of the Mississippi River in the number of its alumni listed therein.

Heald's is dedicated to developing high ideals of manhood and womanhood by fostering that which makes for right living and good citizenship, by providing the very highest method in business and engineering education and training, and by supplying business and engineering executives with competent, loyal employees.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

BERKELEY SCHOOL

Berkeley School is the type of institution where young women of discrimination, poise, and ambition can pursue a secretarial or business education at the college level in an environment calculated to stimulate responsibility and awaken new interests. An even balance is maintained between graduates of private preparatory schools and college women on the one hand, and high school graduates on the other. The result, when combined with a flexible curriculum that can be adjusted to the requirements of each individual student, is a homogeneous group of alert, practical, and determined young women, working and thinking in terms of the business world they soon will enter.

Courses offered are: an intensive one-year course, a comprehensive two-year course and (to those with two semesters of college work) an executive secretarial course for college women. In addition to the full-time, college-trained faculty, lectures and courses in business administration are conducted by well-known visiting professors.

PASADENA PLAYHOUSE

College of Theatre Arts

Serving An Educational Area Vital To The Progress Of America

The Pasadena Playhouse College Of Theatre Arts is the one institution in America dedicated exclusively to the inculcation of communicative arts and granting Bachelor and Master of Arts degrees in Theatre. It has been named the greatest single contributing force in the development of stage and screen talent. It is a non-profit corporation serving the nation as well as the individual, for the most potent weapons in the war of ideas are the instruments of communication. The crying need for advancement in the social sciences, to match our technological skills, demands new institutions capable of imparting skills in understanding and associaton. Basic to such advancement is the educational area served by Pasadena Playhouse. Plant and equipment of the school is valued in excess of one million dollars. Much of this has been contributed by patrons who have grasped the vison embraced in the school's philosophy of education and the abilty of the staff to translate this vision into actuality. Visitors are always welcome.

MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGE OF PHARMACY

FOUNDED 1823

An Outstanding Professional School

For more than a century-and-a-quarter Massachusetts College of Pharmacy has been preparing men and women for the practice of the profession of pharmacy. During this long period it has continued to advance steadily in esteem, in service, and in physical plant. Today it is counted as one of the outstanding pharmaceutical institutions of the world.

The modern practice of pharmacy requires an education, training and plant comparable in its field with that of the medical school in the field of medicine. Massachusetts College of Pharmacy is a non-profit organization intent upon providing superior courses at moderate cost to a selected student body. Generous endowments in the past have made this policy possible. Generous endowments in the future will continue to do so.

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Announcing . . .

Citations For Corporate Educational Philanthrophy

For the past 18 years the editors of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA have been awarding, every two years upon the issuance of a new volume of WHO'S WHO, citations for exceptional educational philanthropy. These biennial citations have noted outstanding gifts to independent American institutions of higher learning made by individuals and estates. Over the years the awarding of these citations has become an established function of the editors and an anticipated event in educational circles. Now, in view of the stature attained in recent years by corporate giving to education, the editors are, in conjunction with the publication of Volume 29, awarding the First Biennial Citations for Corporate Educational Philanthropy, announced on page 3205.

The purpose of the Citations for Corporate Educational Philanthropy is to note outstanding examples of corporate giving to education and, by so doing, to stimulate, it is hoped, increased interest in this type of philanthropy on the part of American business. The editors believe that corporate giving is of such tremendous significance to the future of American education, and thus to the future of the American way of life, that it demands special recognition. It is their intention to render it such recognition by means of these new citations.

Furthermore, the number and diversity of the examples of corporate giving called to the Editors' attention in connection with the awards made concurrently with the publication of this volume and announced on page 3205, convince them that the cause of educational philanthropy will best be served by more frequent awarding of a larger number of citations, recognizing not only the type of strictly corporate benefactions cited in this volume, but as well unique examples of corporate giving methodology and instances of exceptional giving by sole proprietorships and unincorporated businesses; and that the award of these citations should be brought to the attention of American business as frequently and as thoroughly as possible. To these ends the Editors therefore announce the following policy for the future in connection with their citations for gifts to higher education by American business:

I—The Citations for Corporate Educational Philanthropy will be recorded in each edition of WHO'S WHO IN COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY, beginning with the tenth, which will be published in the summer of 1957. (These citations, and, in all probability, additional citations, if warranted, will also be recorded in the succeeding edition of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA, Volume 30, to be published in February, 1958.)

II—The Editors of WHO'S WHO IN COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY will themselves award special citations intended to bring to notice additional examples of corporate giving methodology and exceptional benefactions by sole proprietorships and unincorporated businesses, these citations to be first announced in the Tenth Edition of that international business reference work.

Recommendations of gifts by American business deemed worthy of this special recognition will be welcomed by the editors from businessmen, educators, and all others to whose attention this announcement comes. They may be sent to the editors as indicated below.

Examples of educational philanthropy either by corporations or by sole proprietorships or unincorporated businesses should be sent, with a full description of the nature of the gift, the amount, the date of award, and the name(s) of the donee institution(s), to:
